Chats have the following hierarchy: a div with the 'chat' class to hold everything, under which there are 'msgbox' (message box) paragraphs that hold individual messages sent. At its most basic, within each message box you then have a message and time.

You only need one 'chat' holding everything, and then as many 'msgbox's for as many messages as you have. To have messages show as either sent to received, add the 'sent' or 'received' class alongside the 'msgbox'.

To add a message, create a span with a 'message' class within a 'msgbox'. To add a time, create a span with a 'time' class within a 'msgbox'.

If you don't want times on your messages, you will still need to include the 'time' span, but you can leave its contents blank. Otherwise, alignment issues might happen.
